

The Importance of Private Lessons

Private Lessons are one of the best forms of instruction that parents can provide to their children. With private lessons, students receive “one on one” instruction from a professional musician who specializes on their assigned instrument, unlike a band class where students learn to perform in an ensemble setting. Each student’s individual needs are assessed and focused on during their lessons.

Students who receive private lessons once a week from a professional musician are usually those who excel on their instrument(s) and find music more enjoyable. These students frequently earn seats in the South Carolina Band Director’s Association events such as All-State and Region Band Clinics, participate in various Honor Band Clinics, earn music scholarships, and promote leadership skills. Please consider providing your child a private lesson once a week. Below are Private Lesson Instructors that come very highly recommended by Mr. Allison.
